Katie Storms is an associate at Lind, Jensen, Sullivan & Peterson, P.A. Katie focuses her practice on insurance defense litigation, primarily in the workers' compensation arena. Katie specializes in representing employers and insurers in a variety of complex employment and workers' compensation issues. She enjoys cultivating relationships with both employers and insurers alike, providing exceptional legal representation and trial advocacy on her clients' behalf. Katie joined the firm from Aafedt, Forde, Gray, Monson & Hager, P.A. where she began her legal career, working first as a clerk before becoming an associate and shareholder. Katie has also given presentations on the ethical obligations of an attorney and frequently lectures on the practice of workers' compensation law. Outside of her law practice, Katie enjoys spending time with her two children and golden retriever, reading and cooking.
